

RiderScan blind spot eliminator

Like 0 Send Tweet

Image 1 of 3

Simple invention drastically reduces the blind spot zones for motorcyclists

Most motorcyclists are masters of the rapid head check, a motion necessary to clear up the giant blind spots left by standard motorcycle mirrors. But a new invention could reduce those blind spots even further...

Has a Scottish motorcyclist single-handedly solved major blind spot issues for the modern day motorcyclist? Meet the RiderScan, a simple solution to the problem of limited rearward vision that all motorcyclists face.

After a near miss with another motorist, Stephen Hunter spotted the curved surface of shiny saucepan in the kitchen and was inspired by the wide range of vision it offered in its reflection. After a few experiments the RiderScan was born, an "ultra lightweight" device that can be attached to the inside of most motorcycles and scooter screens.

There are also mounting brackets available for handlebars, for use on motorcycles or scooters without screens or wind deflectors.

According to Hunter, the device provides 180 degree horizontal view into blind spot areas and "With one glance all is revealed."

Priced at £36 pounds (roughly $60) the RiderScan could be a useful tool for the rider who wants more vision. "RiderScan is a scanning mirror when mounted correctly under normal circumstances the rider at one glance will see into all the blind spot areas," reads the official literature.

Check out the RiderScan website for more details.

Published : Monday, 3 October 2011

Related Articles

Post-GP protest ride
It will take place in...
Published : Saturday, 20 October 2012

Don't miss the bikesales.com.au GP Expo!
Heading to the AirAsia...
Published : Friday, 19 October 2012

Ward to join Holder in world title
Jason Crump may have retired...
Published : Friday, 19 October 2012

2013 Australian speedway calendars
Summer in Australia means...
Published : Friday, 19 October 2012

More >>

Enter keywords

Make Category Article Type

RedBook mobile is now live!

Latest Posts

bikesales.com.au on Facebook

2,189 people like bikesales.com.au.

Facebook social plugin

Latest

Post-GP protest ride
It will take place in Melbourne the day after the Australian...
20 Oct 2012

Don't miss the bikesales.com.au GP Expo!
Heading to the AirAsia Australian Motorcycle Grand Prix? Then be...
19 Oct 2012

Ward to join Holder in world title
Jason Crump may have retired from the world speedway title, but...
19 Oct 2012

2013 Australian speedway calendars
Summer in Australia means national speedway titles across the...
19 Oct 2012

Win Ben Townley's race bike!
Honda and Pirelli have teamed up to give dirt bike fans a shot at...
19 Oct 2012